Rachael likes reading detective novels. Sometimes she pretends to be a detective. She has a puppy called Robin, and she likes to talk to Robin although all Robin says is "woof, woof".

One day, when she arrived home, she felt something wasn't right.

"Look, Robin, the door isn't locked. Somebody might have visited our home." And she opened the door gently. She looked left and right. There was no one.

"See, the light is on. Somebody might have forgotten to switch it off before they left." And she went up to the couch in the middle of the living room.

"Oh, chips on the couch! Somebody might have spilled their chips while sitting on the couch!" And she turned on the TV.

"The channel I last saw was Channel 7, and now is Channel 9. Somebody might have changed the channel!"

And then there was a voice at the kitchen door. "And somebody might have come all the way from London to cook for you." It was Rachael's mum. "Mum! It's you!"

Rachael hasn't seen her mother in years. She was surprised and happy to see her. They sat down in the kitchen and had dinner together.
